Re: Patentability Search for Internet Shopping Card

Dear Lena:

Many thanks for the work on the light bulb search. I had one question that maybe you could help me with. I received two copies of the light-bulb search report, which reminded me that I thought there was a second search for which I had forwarded you a disclosure. For the life of me I cannot remember what the second search was, or who it was for. If you remember could you please let me know.

I have another search for you, and this is the one we talked about last week on the phone. This invention is still at the conceptual stage so I do not have much detail. The invention involves the use of the internet for shopping. In particular, the use of a special card for internet shopping. The card is much like a phone card, in that it can be issued in various amounts and then used to purchase services over the internet. The card could be purchased in person through retail stores, banks, grocery stores, and the like. The card would function like a credit card, except that you prepay for a specific amount of credit in advance. The advantage of the internet card is that it could not be rejected by the on-line retailer, and on-line retailer would not require any verification since the user has already pre-paid for the card. Further, the user who is wary of on-line purchases could use the card instead of giving out their credit card number. They only risk the amount invested in the individual card.

I hope this provides you with enough information to perform the search, if not please do not hesitate to contact me. Again, thanks for the help.

Sincerely,

DAVIS, BROWN, KOEHN, SHORS & ROBERTS, P.C.
